Sounds good, Vern.
If the committee is set on sandblasted/carved signs, I can look into that as well.

Thanks Ben
Let me check with my committee and see if that is what they want.

Hello Vern,

Indeed, I do make new signs. However, they are hand painted on a flat surface rather than sandblasted/carved like the Annex signs. They would look the same but not have the raised letters. However, specially painted shadow lettering gives the appearance of raised letters. These would be done with the best quality materials and would last for years. If you are interested, I'd love to chat.

Blessings,
Ben

Ben
Do you ever make new signs.
Thinking about adding signs similar to the Annex sign at each of our small parks.
Thanks
Vern

On the one side, I would be surprised if there is more than 2x2 remaining of the original 4x4 treated post. This should really be replaced. Would you like that replaced? If so, do you have someone who will do that or would you prefer I put some new posts in there? If you are pleased with the work, feel free to let me know which sign you would like me to proceed with next. I can fill out another work offer.

Hand lettering and refurbishing old signs has been a hobby of mine for decades and I'm thrilled to do these for our awesome town. Since chatting with Scott, I realized we missed one - the Lynden Centennial Park sign is perhaps one in most need of refurbishing. Due to the way it is installed, I may need to do this one on site.
