Bob Bryant Disc Golf Course

I went out and walked the holes in the woods at Bob Bryant. After looking at fairways and trails to each hole, there are some areas that have already wore down significantly and areas that are fairing just fine. I spoke with a gentlemen who plays there weekly and he feels that course wear is not bad yet. Areas where surface wear is severe are short segments in-between holes and at the tee boxes. Hole that are out in the open like 4,5, and 6 are fine with grass holding up well from the extra foot traffic. I believe the main contributor to grass wear is the lack of rain we have not received in the last few months along with the higher than average temperatures. These areas were also untouched for years and now are mowed bi-weekly, which is a dramatic change for this environment.
