

The City pays the Chamber to provide services that help promote and support Boardman. In simple terms, the Chamber is expected to:

- Provide visitor and relocation information.
- Help promote Boardman and local businesses.
- Organize community events and business activities.
- Assist new and existing businesses.
- Welcome and provide information to prospective developers.
- Represent Boardman at regional and statewide meetings.
- Report to the City Council each quarter on its activities and services.

The City currently pays the Chamber $125,000 per year for these services.

The Chamber displays accountability to the City by:

- Providing quarterly invoices and activity reports to the City Council.
- Explaining what events, promotions, and services were completed.
- Having a Chamber representative available to answer Council questions when requested.
- Following all applicable local, state, and federal laws.
- Remaining responsible for its own employees, contracts, taxes, and operating obligations.
- Being subject to the City's ability to terminate the agreement with 90 days' notice if the partnership is not working as intended.

In simple terms, the main accountability measure is that the Chamber must regularly show the Council what it did, what services it provided, and what the City is paying for.
