Provisions of Zoning Ordinance (If Known)
Article IV. Section 28-111 Residential Zones. Table B. Dimensional Table. Lot area per dwelling unit in Residential R-10 zoning district.

Describe the extent of the proposed alterations and the reasons for the requesting relief
Dear Members of the Bristol Zoning Board of Review, My name is Florina and I am the owner of 44 Basswood Drive. I am submitting this application to request a dimensional variance to convert my single family home into a two family residence for multi generational living. The proposed layout includes three bedrooms and two bathrooms in each unit, with a kitchen, and dining room. The existing footprint of the structure will remain unchanged.

There will be an entry point in the garage area that allows access to the first and second floors. Each unit will have two means of egress. This shared entry between the two units will serve as a common access corridor. Each unit will have its own lockable door at that access point, maintaining full separation while still providing a shared entry opportunity.

The proposed plans that our family created are attached, along with photos of the house and the driveway. The current driveway accommodates six vehicles.

The standards in Section 28-409(c)(1). Below is how my proposal meets each standard.

Standard 1. The hardship is due to the unique characteristics of the property. My lot is below the minimum lot size for a two family home. This limitation creates a physical constraint that prevents me from meeting the dimensional requirement, even though the structure itself is large enough to safely and properly support two units.

Standard 2. The hardship is not the result of any action taken by me or my family. The lot size was established before my ownership and I have not altered or reduced it.

Standard 3. Granting the variance will not alter the character of the surrounding area or conflict with the intent of the zoning ordinance. The exterior of the home will remain the same and no expansion of the footprint is proposed. The project is limited to interior reconfiguration to accommodate multi generational living.

Standard 4. The relief requested is the least relief necessary. The only relief needed is the dimensional variance related to lot size. All other aspects of the project comply with zoning requirements.

Thank you for considering my application. I am available to provide any additional information the Board may need.

Sincerely,
Florina
