planning

independent in my

to do what everyone else does."

"It is so much fun to spend time with [my] big sister. She makes me feel so happy. She listens to me and hugs me when I am sad. We talk all the time. She is like my actual big sister."

"I liked presenting to possible investors and giving them my business pitch."

Provider Voices: Program Impact

"We counted it a great success to be able to have had the opportunity to engage young people, young men particularly, in honest and open dialogue... Our discussions were thought provoking and 'real' because the reality is that we are losing many of our black youth before they have even found themselves. We were able to incorporate some history lessons to tie into what we are experiencing in current times. We were able to build a 'shell of comfort and comradery' amongst young men that allowed them to be vulnerable as they 'thought aloud' without fear of ridicule."

Comraderie, safe place

Exposure to new things

"We traveled to Atlanta for the Southern Black Girl Dream Conference, providing exposure to leadership and empowerment opportunities. Our 4th Annual HBCU Tour took us to Alabama, where the girls toured Tuskegee University, Alabama A&M, the Rosa Parks Museum, and the Freedom Rides Museum. They also visited Selma to learn about Bloody Sunday and walked across the historic Edmund Pettus Bridge... gaining a deeper understanding of civil rights history and leadership. These experiences cultivate a sense of cultural pride and inspire the girls to pursue higher education, often in environments that reflect their heritage and aspirations."
