Items of Interest

- The 'major case of the month' involved an assault with a firearm that took place on April 7th in the 400 block of Carson Street. Two male suspects along with a female suspect approached two men walking west on Carson Street. An AR-15 style rifle was produced and used to strike the male victim as the other male accompanying the victim walked away. Fortunately, the weapon wasn't fired nor did the victim sustain severe injuries. A search warrant was subsequently served at the residence of the suspects and associated vehicles. The firearm was recovered and all three suspects were booked into Colusa County Jail on charges associated with the attack.
- During the months of March and April, the Colusa Police Department worked with Cordico to develop and launch an application for officer wellness. This application is not only available to officers but also their spouses/significant others and children as well as retired officers. The application assists with not only mental health but also physical fitness, healthy sleep habits, financial fitness. Resources to mental health therapists, chaplains, and the Employee Assistance Program are also accessible through the application.
- Code Enforcement along with Officers will continue to check trucks/trailers for compliance with paying launch fees at the boat launch in Colusa. Additionally, vehicles will also be issued citations for vehicles not legally parked in the immediate.
- It is not uncommon for the Colusa Police Department to receive complaints about vehicles parked along public roadways that are inoperable or even abandoned. If a vehicle's registration has expired for more than 6 months, it can be towed pursuant to section 22651(o) of the California Vehicle Code. A vehicle can't be parked on a public roadway more than 120 hours on a per section 11-8(Z) of the Colusa City Code. This excludes vehicles on private property. Should you notice a yellow 'warning' tag on vehicle, if the vehicle is not moved quickly, it will be towed. Often it will be tagged without further notice.
