Safety Town is two-hour a day, two-week program for five and six year old children (not older, not younger) that teaches safety lessons on strangers, traffic, pedestrians, fire, bicycles, bus, poisons (including drugs), water and guns.

This community service program has been sponsored by the Greensboro Police Department, the Nat Greene Kiwanis Club of Greensboro, and other area local civic and business organizations for over 39 years. It is fully accredited by the National Safety Town Center of Cleveland, Ohio and a staple for the design of other facilities around the country.

Safety Town programs provide pedal carts for the children to ride around the town while learning about street safety and other community concerns. The streets are marked with crossing zones, and bike lanes in addition to the recognizable street lines. To enhance the experience, working stop lights, walk/don't walk signs and a railroad crossing are included.

Each building is designed to accommodate additional donors for the reverse side as the program continues to develop through future years of growth.

The buildings adorning the street are representations of the donor's businesses and sized according to the amount of their donation. Designed by Allen Industries in collaboration with the donor, they represent a fun and kid-friendly environment with recognizable characters.

The buildings are constructed of wood and wrapped in ACM for stability and weather resistance. The prints were applied to ACM or PVC. With a life-expectancy of a minimum of five years of outdoor durability, the donors will be given an opportunity to donate to the program again and have changes made to their facade.

Smitty's McDonald's occupied a corner space on the site, so they purchased two sides allowing additional visual representation.
