Chapter 1 Jonesboro Yesterday

Leaksville Beginnings

Prior to the passage of the Treaty of Indian Springs, the land now known as Jonesboro was inhabited by the Coweta tribe of the Creek Indian Confederation. Upon the passage of the treaty, the area was opened to white settlement and became a small community named Leaksville. The town took shape at the intersection of two important travel corridors; the White Hall Wagon Road running north to south, and the Strawn Trail, a former Native American trail and stagecoach route running from the southwest towards Stone Mountain. Today, this path roughly follows SR-54/Highway 138 through Jonesboro. In 1823, the State of Georgia granted a charter for the Leaksville Academy, marking the official start of the town.

The arrival of the railroad in 1843 proved transformative. The Monroe Railroad extended tracks through Leaksville but financial depression forced the company into bankruptcy the following year. The reorganized Macon and Western Railroad inherited the line, and one of its principal engineers, Colonel Samuel Goode Jones, took a particular interest in the small town. Jones re-engineered Leaksville as a formal 2,000-by-2,400-foot city grid centered on the railroad, and in appreciation, local citizens renamed the village Jonesboro around 1845. Regular rail service to Atlanta was established by 1846, spurring steady commercial growth.

From Crossroads to County Seat

In 1858, the Georgia legislature created Clayton County from portions of Henry County and Fayette County, and Jonesboro was designated the county seat.

The following year, the city received its official charter. By 1860, Jonesboro had grown into a prosperous community with its economy anchored by railroad commerce and the surrounding agricultural economy of farms and plantations.

The Civil War and Beyond

The Civil War brought both sacrifice and destruction to Jonesboro. Much of the town's young male population enlisted, and in August and September of 1864, the war arrived on home soil. The Battle of Jonesboro, fought over two days on August 31st and September 1st, was the decisive battle of the Atlanta Campaign. Confederate forces were defeated, Atlanta was evacuated, and the battle's outcome is widely credited with securing Abraham Lincoln's re-election and hastening the end of the war. The fighting left nearly two-thirds of Jonesboro in ruins.

Reconstruction was slow and difficult. The courthouse, depot, and much of the town's commercial fabric had to be rebuilt from scratch, and the political turmoil of the era further hindered progress. Nevertheless, Jonesboro pressed forward. Education was central to the community's recovery. Middle Georgia College was chartered in 1880 from the former Clayton High School, drawing students from across the state and anchoring the town's cultural and civic life for decades.

Growth continued through the late 19th and early 20th centuries, but Jonesboro was not immune to the broader forces reshaping small Southern towns. The rise of the automobile improved regional highways and the pull of larger cities drew residents and commerce away. The Great Depression of the 1920s and 1930s hit Jonesboro hard. It was the 1936 publication of Margaret Mitchell's Gone with the Wind, said to be set in a fictional rendition of the Jonesboro area, that restored the city's national profile and helped spark a renewed sense of civic pride.

The mid-20th century brought new infrastructure that further connected Jonesboro to the growing Atlanta region. Highway 19-41 opened in the 1950s, and Interstate 75 was completed in 1969, integrating the city into the expanding metropolitan network. In 1971, Jonesboro established its Historic District, a deliberate act of preservation that recognized the town's architectural and cultural significance and set a foundation for incorporating its small-town character into future planning. Today, Jonesboro carries that legacy forward, it is a community shaped by Native American heritage, the railroad era, Civil War memory, and literary fame, working to honor its history while building toward its future.

Introduction

After delving into how Jonesboro came to be Jonesboro, it is important to also delve into the current conditions of Jonesboro's demographics, land, natural resources, housing, transportation, broadband, and previous planning. To do so, data was gathered from the most recent Census and American Community Survey, as well as other sources like the Georgia Department of Community affairs and previous comprehensive plans.

Demographic Profile

Population Change

Jonesboro is a small town on the rise. Although it saw a -17% decrease in 2021, the city rebounded with +13% overall growth, signaling steady upward momentum.

City	2020 Population	2024 Population	% Change 2020 to 2024

Age Distribution

Jonesboro remains a young and growing community. The median age is 32, and the 25-34 cohort is the city's largest age group at 1,231 residents, nearly double the next largest group, the 45-54 cohort at 792. Nearly 29% of residents are under 20, and the 25-34 bracket accounts for another 20%, meaning close to half the population is under 35. The comparatively small share of older adults (65+) further reinforces Jonesboro's profile as a city oriented around working-age adults and young families, with significant implications for housing, services, and economic opportunity.

Racial Distribution

Between 2000 and 2010, the city shifted from a majority-white community to a majority-minority one. By 2020, approximately 58% of residents identified as Black and 26% as White, with Asian residents and those of two or more races making up the remaining 16%.

The trend toward greater diversity has continued since then. The Black and White population shares have each declined modestly while the Asian population and multiracial residents have grown. Jonesboro is also notably more Hispanic than the surrounding region, with 13.7% of residents identifying as Hispanic, roughly 3.5 percentage points above the 11-county regional average.

Employment by Sector, Jonesboro 2024

Industries & Employment

Jonesboro's economic base has shifted meaningfully since the 2021 Comprehensive Plan, when Public Administration, Educational Services, and Retail Trade were the dominant sectors. By 2024, Manufacturing has emerged as the leading sector at 17.8%, followed by Arts, Entertainment, Recreation, and Food Services at 14.3% and Transportation and Warehousing at 13.7%, while Public Administration has fallen to just 4.7%. This shift away from government and education toward goods-producing and service industries reflects broader economic restructuring across the region.

Income

Jonesboro's income landscape reflects significant economic diversity and persistent inequality. While the largest share of households earn between $50,000 and $75,000 annually, over 33% earn less than $25,000 per year, and the city's median household income of $50,843 trails Clayton County's median of $59,806 by nearly $9,000. This disparity is further underscored by Jonesboro's poverty rate of 35.3%, which is more than double Clayton County's rate of 17.7% and more than three times the Atlanta metro average of 11%.

Housing Profile

Housing Tenure

Since the 2021 Comprehensive Plan, Jonesboro's housing landscape has shifted considerably. In 2020, occupied housing units were split 64% renter-occupied and 36% owner-occupied, with a 10% vacancy rate. By 2024, owner-occupied households nearly doubled from 476 to 944, while renter households rose from 850 to 1,056. Renters still account for the largest share at 49%, compared to 44% owner-occupied and 7% vacant, but the gains in homeownership represent a notable reversal of the trend documented in the previous plan.

Affordability pressures remain a significant concern, particularly for renters. According to the Census ACS, approximately 53.1% of renter households in Jonesboro are cost burdened, paying 30% or more of their household income on housing costs. While this represents a modest improvement from the 62% reported in the 2021 plan, the burden remains acute: 19% of renter households spend between 40–49.9% of their income on rent, and 35% spend 50% or more, meaning more than one in three renter households is severely cost burdened.

Homeowners with a mortgage fare comparatively better, with a cost burden rate of 18.3%, a notably lower rate than both Clayton County (36.2%) and the Atlanta metro average (26.3%). This suggests that for residents who have achieved homeownership, Jonesboro remains relatively affordable. Owners without a mortgage show a slightly elevated burden rate of 12.5% compared to the metro average of 11.4%, a trend worth monitoring as the city's population ages.

Housing Submarket

According to the Metro Atlanta Housing Strategy (MAHS), Jonesboro’s market positioning has shifted considerably since the 2021 Comprehensive Plan. At that time, the city was more evenly split between Submarket 7 and Submarket 8. The city was 52% Submarket 8 and 48% Submarket 7 in 2021. By 2024, that balance had shifted dramatically, with 89% of the city falling within Submarket 8 and just 11% remaining in Submarket 7.

This consolidation into the lowest-priced submarket reflects the continued affordability pressures and relative stagnation of owner-occupied housing stock documented elsewhere in this profile. At the same time, home values have risen. In 2021, the city’s median home sale price was $110,000, up 200% from 2013. According to Zillow, a typical home was estimated to be worth $179,000 in 2021. The median value of owner-occupied housing units has since risen to $188,300, continuing an upward trajectory even as the city’s submarket classification has shifted downward.

Taken together, these trends point to a housing market under pressure, where rising home values have not translated into broader homeownership opportunity. The comprehensive plan update presents an opportunity to advance policies that expand housing options, support renters facing cost burden, and create conditions for more residents to build long-term stability through homeownership.

Broadband Profile

According to the FCC Broadband Data Collection (December 2025), Jonesboro falls within the 94.4–100% wired broadband coverage range, placing it among the best-served communities in the state.

While citywide coverage figures are strong, coverage alone does not capture the full picture. Broadband availability data reflects whether a provider offers service in an area, but does not account for affordability, actual speeds experienced by residents, or household adoption rates. Given Jonesboro’s high renter population and significant share of lower-income households, ensuring that residents can afford and meaningfully access broadband service remains an important equity consideration for this plan update.

Average Commute Time: 34.6m

Transportation Profile

The vast majority of Jonesboro residents commute by car. According to ACS data, 67% of workers drive alone and another 20.8% carpool, meaning nearly 9 in 10 employed residents rely on a personal vehicle. Walking accounts for 3% of commute trips and 8.4% of residents work from home. Notably, zero percent of residents reported using public transportation, pointing to a significant gap in transit utilization despite available MARTA bus service through routes 193 (Morrow/Jonesboro) and 192 (Old Dixie/Tara Blvd).

Commute times reflect the city’s position within the broader Atlanta metro. The mean commute time is 34.6 minutes, with the largest share of residents (29.6%) traveling 30 to 34 minutes. An additional 22.1% commute 45 minutes or more, indicating that a meaningful portion of residents face long daily trips to employment centers outside the city.

Relevant Studies and Plans

2021 City of Jonesboro Comprehensive Plan

The 2021 Comprehensive Plan called for high-quality multimodal connections and flagged Tara Boulevard as a key corridor in need of pedestrian improvements, noting the potential for MARTA Bus Rapid Transit along the State Route 54 corridor as a future consideration.

Tara Blvd. Livable Centers Initiative (LCI)

The Tara Boulevard LCI reimagines the 11-mile, car-centric corridor as a multimodal, people-focused destination covering more than 5,600 acres. Developed in partnership with Aerotropolis Atlanta, the study includes recommendations for pedestrian safety and improved access to bus routes along the corridor. The study received the Atlanta Regional Commission (ARC's) 2025 Regional Excellence Award for Visionary Planning.

Blueprint Jonesboro LCI Study

The Downtown LCI created a vision for walkability and economic development in downtown Jonesboro, with a focus on connecting existing MARTA and Xpress bus stops to the downtown core through trails and streetscape improvements. Completion of the study made Jonesboro eligible to apply for federal transportation funding.

Chapter 3 Vision for the Future

Community Engagement

As part of the 2026 Comprehensive Plan update, there were multiple opportunities for the community to engage. This included a survey open for three months, from April to July, a steering committee made up of Jonesboro residents, business owners, city staff, and an elected official, and multiple in-person engagement events. The questions and information gathered from each opportunity differ, providing an array of thoughts on Jonesboro's past and future. A timeline of events can be found below.

Looking Back, Looking Forward

Every five years, Jonesboro's Comprehensive Plan revisits the community's shared vision to ensure it still reflects who we are and where we want to go. The 2021 Plan established a vision and set of goals to guide the City through 2035. As part of this update, residents were asked to reflect on that vision and identify the priorities that matter most today.

2021 Vision Statement

Jonesboro is a strongly connected community where individuals are valued. It elevates the arts, the environment, and civic participation while planning for growth and improving quality of life

2021 Community Goals

In 2035, Jonesboro will have:

- A Reenergized, Bustling Main Street
- Remarkable Places Throughout the City
- A Strong Economy as the County Seat of Clayton County
- Great Connectivity and High-Quality Amenities

How does the 2026 engagement reflect on the previous vision?

- The community is split on whether the 2021 goals still reflect their vision: 43% agree, 33% disagree, and 23% are unsure, suggesting the goals may need refreshed framing rather than a full rewrite.
- When asked to prioritize, residents ranked economic development first, followed by public safety, infrastructure maintenance, and housing, keeping economic strength as a top concern, consistent with 2021, while elevating day-to-day service delivery.
- Infrastructure emerged as a dominant theme in resident comments, with recurring concerns about stormwater drainage and clogged storm drains, street cleaning and debris removal, road resurfacing and lane striping, railroad crossing maintenance, and inconsistent street lighting in neighborhoods such as Forest Knoll.
- Public safety concerns, including red-light running, echo residents' desire for a safer, better-connected city under the original Great Connectivity goal.
- Redevelopment of North Main Street continues to be a priority, aligning with the original goal of creating remarkable places throughout the city.

2026 Vision Statement and Community Goals

Based on feedback gathered through the survey, steering committee meetings, and in-person engagement events, five community goals were identified to guide Jonesboro through the next planning cycle. These goals reflect what residents ranked as their top priorities along with a continued commitment to Main Street as the heart of the city.

2026 Vision Statement

Jonesboro is a vibrant community where every resident is valued and empowered to shape its future. As we grow, we are committed to creating a city where growth and quality of life rise together

2026 Community Goals

In 2035, Jonesboro will have:

- A Thriving, Diverse Economy
- A Safe City for All
- Well-Maintained Infrastructure
- A Reenergized Main Street

Survey Results

To reach a broad cross-section of residents, the City launched an online survey through PublicInput, promoted via the project website, flyers, and QR codes at City Hall and community events. The survey ran from April 1 through July 3, 2026, asking residents about their priorities for downtown, housing, transportation, and the overall direction of the city.

Respondents skewed toward long-term residents, with nearly 80% connected to Jonesboro for 10+ years and over half age 55 or older, so results are best read alongside the City's in-person engagement events, which reached a younger, more representative cross-section of the community.

Engagement Meetings Thoughts and Results

As mentioned, along with the survey, engagement data was collected from the steering committee and two city-wide events.

Steering Committee Meeting #1

The steering committee consisted of Jonesboro residents, business owners, city staff, and an elected official. At the first meeting, the committee was asked to conduct a SWOT (Strengths, Weaknesses, Opportunities, and Threats) analysis to examine where the city thrives and where there is need for improvement. Below is what the committee identified.

Strengths	Weaknesses	Opportunities	Threats
1 Representative City Council whose age reflects the community	1 Out-of-date processes	1 Downtown Development	1 Stagnation
2 Strong sense of community	2 Lack of clarity/clear communication	2 Property Redevelopment	2 Aging Stormwater Infrastructure
3 Design Review and Historic Preservation Commissions	3 Outsourcing of permitting/review	3 17 Vacant Properties in Downtown	3 Public Safety Concerns
4 Lee Street Park	4 Lack of overall community involvement	4 Industrial Property/Southern Crescent	4 Property Maintenance
5 Location - proximity to Atlanta and the airport	5 Fear of losing small-town charm creates stagnancy	5 New Housing Developments in the Works	5 Stuck in the Past
6 Shared outdoor public space	6 Old and unutilized buildings	6 Community Involvement	6 Historical Narrative
7 Young Population	7 Recreational activities for children and youth	7 Placemaking / Local Artists	7 Old Processes, New Times
8 Public Facilities	8 Lack of mixed housing	8 New City Manager with Economic Vision	8 Limited Revenue Streams

Across all four categories, several themes emerge. Downtown revitalization is both an opportunity and a challenge as vacant and underutilized properties are seen as a chance for redevelopment, while property maintenance and old buildings remain a concern. Community involvement surfaces repeatedly, from strong civic pride as a strength to a recognized need for greater resident participation. Jonesboro's leadership and location are viewed as core strengths, but outdated internal processes and communication gaps point to room for improvement in how the city operates and engages residents going forward. Looking outward, the committee also flagged the city's historical narrative and public safety as areas of concern, recognizing how Jonesboro's past is told, and how safe residents feel day to day, can shape outside perception and hold the city back if left unaddressed.

Steering Committee Meeting #2

At the second steering committee meeting, the group used Mentimeter, a free interactive polling tool, to answer the question: "What are 3 goals you have for the city within 5 years?" Responses were then ranked by popularity based on how many committee members submitted similar ideas. The results, shown below, highlight a strong emphasis on downtown revitalization, resident engagement, and improving the overall appeal of the city.

Mentimeter

What are 3 goals you have for the city within 5 years?

Focus on Commerical/Retail Opportunities downtown Continue creative placemaking Trail connectivity and sidewalk improvements 3 Popular	Thriving downtown (restaurants but also family friendly businesses and hang out spots) Health push for residents (walk ability, bike trails) 3 Popular	Improve the eye appeal of city. Develop program and services to engage residents. Fill gaps in downtown. 2
Serving the citizens with genuine engagement. City Mayor engagement with residents and business owners. Better maintenance. 2	Good news curated and shared on messaging platforms. 2	Increase resident and business owner participation on City Boards 2

City Wide Meetings

June 2, 2026
Jonesboro Townhall

On June 2nd, the ARC project manager spoke at the city-wide townhall to give an overview of what a comprehensive plan is, why it matters for the city, and why community engagement is so important. This event also served as an introduction of the city's new City Manager, giving residents a chance to meet them and ask questions. The community's voice is the most important part of this process. At the event, we tabled for the survey, listened to resident concerns, and encouraged attendees to get involved and take the survey.

June 19, 2026
Juneteenth Festival

ARC also tabled at the 3rd Annual Jonesboro Juneteenth Festival, a city-wide celebration that brought together the community with fireworks, music, and food. At our table, we set up three boards for residents to engage with. The first was a city limits map where people marked where they live and where they work. The second board displayed a QR code linking to the survey and the comprehensive plan website. The third asked residents to vote on which issue the city should prioritize. Housing and infrastructure received the most votes, followed by public safety and economic development, with transportation receiving the fewest. Several residents also wrote in additional priorities, including funding for small businesses that contribute to community development, a request for increased police presence, and strong opposition to data center development.

Community Priorities

Putting together all our engagement efforts discussed in this chapter, we identified four main areas of concern in the community. Residents consistently ranked Economic Development, Public Safety, Infrastructure Maintenance, and Housing as their top priorities. Using resident comments, both written and verbal, the top community priorities are listed in the table below.

Concern	Community Priorities
Economic Development	Redevelopment of North Main Street
	Diversifying the economic base beyond Tara Boulevard
	Attracting new businesses and reinvest in downtown
Public Safety	Funding support for small businesses that contribute to community development
	Increased traffic enforcement to address red-light running
	Increased intentional police presence and patrol
Infrastructure Maintenance	Railroad crossing safety improvements
	Stormwater system repair and clogged drain maintenance
	Street resurfacing and lane striping
Housing	Improved sanitation collection reliability
	Additional street lighting in underlit neighborhoods (e.g., Forest Knoll)
	Preserve affordability for lower-income and disabled residents
	More mixed-income and attainable housing options

Across nearly every engagement opportunity, a common thread emerged: residents want a city that looks and functions well. Concerns about stormwater drainage, street conditions, sanitation collection, and neglected properties came up repeatedly, not just as infrastructure issues, but as matters of civic pride and everyday quality of life. For many residents, the physical appearance and upkeep of Jonesboro is inseparable from how safe, cared-for, and invested-in their neighborhoods feel.

Chapter 4 Future Land Use

Character Areas Overview

A significant guiding element of the comprehensive plan is the future land use component. Future land use differs from current zoning regulations: zoning dictates what is currently allowed to be built in a given area, for example, a single-family home cannot be built on a commercially zoned lot, while future land use reflects what the community would like to see in an area going forward. These Character Areas are intended to ensure compatible and unified development within specified areas of the city, and reflect the priorities identified through the 2026 community engagement process. As described below, these Character Areas guide land use characteristics and development standards, influencing density, land use policy, and permissible uses within each area.

In the previous iteration of the Comprehensive Plan, six character areas were identified: Tara Boulevard Corridor, Residential, Downtown, Gateway North, Gateway South, and Stockbridge Road Corridor. For Jonesboro's footprint of approximately 1,920 acres (3 square miles), there was a focus on the primary uses of commercial, office/institutional, residential, and government. These character areas reflected Jonesboro's role as the county seat of Clayton County, balancing a historic downtown core with commercial corridors and residential neighborhoods. The character areas can be seen on a map on the next page, as well as descriptions to follow. As of this update, community engagement reaffirmed that all six character areas remain relevant to Jonesboro's current and future development patterns, with particular emphasis on downtown revitalization and infrastructure maintenance within existing neighborhoods.

Character Areas by % of Land

Source: Atlanta Regional Commission, July 2026

- Downtown: The historic civic and commercial core anchoring government, retail, and community gathering spaces
- Tara Blvd: A commercial and mixed-use corridor supporting retail, services, and gateway-style development
- Stockbridge Rd: A transitional corridor blending commercial and light institutional uses
- Residential: Established neighborhoods that preserves housing character and quality of life
- Gateway North: A northern entry point into the city, shaping first impressions through commercial and mixed-use development
- Gateway South: A southern entry corridor balancing green spaces, low-density development, and access into the city

What are Character Areas?

Character areas are a representation of the community's vision for the spaces within city limits and provide a more comprehensive look at land patterns and design. These areas are used to identify land that has a common form of development, sense of place, intensity of use, and design elements, which can refer to either existing features or what is intended for the future.

When rezoning applications come forward, the request is intended to be compared to the character areas identified from previous existing conditions and engagement. For instance, if an industrial use tried to come into an area designated as "Downtown," that would not be considered compatible with the desires of the community.

Downtown Map

Source: Atlanta Regional Commission, July 2026

Downtown

Downtown remains the core commercial and office development center of Jonesboro, with continued potential for redevelopment and reinvestment. Residents consistently identified downtown revitalization, including addressing vacant properties, as a top priority, alongside interest in placemaking and support for local artists.

Development Patterns:

- Encourage mixed-use development with ground-floor retail/commercial and upper-floor office or residential
- Maintain a walkable block pattern with minimal setbacks and on-street parking
- Preserve historic building scale and architectural character; new construction should be contextually sensitive
- Prioritize streetscape improvements to support pedestrian activity

Implementation Strategy:

- Downtown should include a viable mixture of retail, office, services, and residential.
- Design should be pedestrian-oriented, with strong, walkable connections between different uses.
- Support placemaking efforts and local artists as a tool for downtown revitalization.
- Prioritize redevelopment of vacant and underutilized downtown properties.
- Enhance the pedestrian-friendly environment with sidewalks and connections to neighboring communities.

Tara Blvd Corridor

The Tara Boulevard corridor remains the main commercial corridor within Clayton County, containing a mix of commercial and government uses. While the corridor is only partially within Jonesboro's city limits, it continues to serve as the area most residents associate with the city's commercial identity. Residents identified this corridor as a continued opportunity for redevelopment, with interest in addressing vacant properties and attracting a more diverse mix of businesses.

Development Patterns:

- Support auto-oriented commercial and retail uses while improving access management (shared driveways, reduced curb cuts)
- Encourage consolidation of parking and landscaping buffers between the corridor and adjacent residential areas
- Plan for future transit or multimodal accommodations given the corridor's role as a primary thoroughfare
- Discourage strip-commercial sprawl; favor consolidated nodes of development over continuous frontage

Implementation Strategy:

- All development should be well-connected by access roads, interparcel connections, and shared drives.
- Complete and integrate pedestrian improvements and crosswalks throughout the corridor.
- Promote high standards of architecture, landscaping, and sign controls to improve corridor appearance, addressing residents' continued concerns about property maintenance and visual appeal.
- Discourage additional curb cuts onto Tara Boulevard.
- Coordinate with the Tara Boulevard LCI Study, adopted in 2024, to align city and county investment along the corridor.

Stockbridge Rd Corridor

This area remains the primary eastern gateway into Jonesboro, characterized by a mix of schools, older commercial development, and primarily multifamily residential. Residents identified infrastructure maintenance and safety, including railroad crossing conditions, as ongoing concerns in this area.

Development Patterns:

- Serve as a transitional zone bridging Downtown intensity and surrounding residential character
- Allow light commercial, office, and institutional uses at a moderate scale
- Require buffering and design transitions where commercial uses abut residential neighborhoods
- Maintain adequate right-of-way for future road or multimodal improvements

Implementation Strategy:

- Design should be pedestrian-oriented, with safe access to and from schools.
- Improve railroad crossing maintenance and safety along the corridor.
- Encourage a mix of housing types in this area.
- Complete and integrate pedestrian improvements and crosswalks throughout the corridor.

Residential Map

Residential

The City's residential areas remain a mixture of historic residences and more modern housing stock. Engagement this cycle reaffirmed resident interest in mixed-income housing options and continued concern about aging infrastructure within neighborhoods.

Development Patterns:

- Protect existing neighborhood character, lot patterns, and housing types from incompatible infill
- Allow limited "missing middle" housing where appropriate to support housing diversity
- Maintain tree canopy and green infrastructure standards in new development
- Ensure adequate connectivity rather than isolated cul-de-sac patterns

Implementation Strategy:

- Promote new developments that emulate the positive aspects of historic Jonesboro's architecture, where relevant.
- Promote new developments that diversify the City's housing stock with thoughtful planning and high-quality architecture.
- Prioritize infrastructure maintenance within existing neighborhoods alongside any new development.
- Promote vehicular and pedestrian/bike connections as well as internal street connectivity.

Residential Character Area Housing Recommendations

As discussed in Chapter 2, Jonesboro falls within Submarket 7 and Submarket 8, and a map of these submarkets can also be found there. Another important factor in evaluating residential possibilities is the housing submarket in which an area is located. Understanding submarket dynamics helps local governments determine the types of housing best suited to future residents, from renters to move-up buyers to those seeking senior or workforce housing. Market recommendations should be considered alongside character areas and zoning to guide well-informed residential development decisions.

Top Housing Actions and Action Steps for this Submarket

Submarket 7: Below-Median Priced Suburban Neighborhoods	Submarket 8: Low-Median Priced Suburban Employment Corridors & Town Centers
Mandate and incentivize affordable housing through inclusionary zoning	Mandate and incentivize affordable housing through inclusionary zoning

Gateway North

Source: Atlanta Regional Commission, July 2026

This area, the North Main and Jonesboro Road corridors north of Downtown, continues to serve as the main gateway into the city from the north and remains a priority for redevelopment and reinvestment. Residents specifically called for improved neighborhood lighting in this area.

Development Patterns:

- Prioritize high-quality design and signage standards, since this area shapes first impressions entering the city
- Support a mix of commercial and mixed-use development at a moderate intensity
- Incorporate landscaping and gateway signage/monumentation at key entry points
- Manage access points along the corridor to reduce congestion and turning conflicts

Implementation Strategy:

- Design should be pedestrian-oriented, with strong, walkable connections between different uses.
- Improve street lighting throughout the corridor and adjacent neighborhoods.
- Enhance the pedestrian-friendly environment with sidewalks and trail/bike routes.
- Screen truck docks and waste handling areas from public view.

Gateway South Map

Gateway South

Gateway South continues to serve the goal of giving the city's southern limits new vitality through a mix of land uses. The area now includes the City-recognized Gateway South zoning district, reflecting the city's continued commitment to this area's revitalization.

Development Patterns:

- Balance lower-density development with preservation of natural features (creeks, floodplain, tree cover)
- Limit intensive commercial uses in favor of light commercial, institutional, or low-density residential
- Protect environmentally sensitive areas from encroachment as the city's southern edge develops
- Plan for infrastructure capacity (roads, utilities) ahead of any future growth pressure

Implementation Strategy:

- Design should be pedestrian-oriented, with strong, walkable connections between different uses.
- The residential component will help diversify quality housing options to supplement the City's aging housing stock.
- Close proximity of housing, new businesses, and offices will embody the City's "live, work, play here" philosophy.
- Design guidelines here remain independent of the Tara Boulevard

Chapter 5 Community Work Program

Introduction

As part of the Community Work Program (CWP), every comprehensive plan update includes a Report of Accomplishments (ROA) that takes the last CWP and the tasks that were identified and provides a status update. For organizational purposes, the tasks are separated into distinct categories. These categories were carried over from the last program. Tasks that are determined to be underway or postponed are carried over to the next cycle until it is complete or no longer deemed a priority.

In terms of the 2026 CWP, it takes all of the information gathered throughout the planning process and establishes a list of action items. These action items are intended to further the vision and goals of the community based on current needs and desires. In other words, the CWP is intended to be a collaborative, action-oriented guide for the future of Jonesboro. The CWP not only identifies projects, but also suggests timeframes, estimated costs, funding sources, and responsible parties. These factors are flexible to new information and are suggestions for potential avenues toward completion.

Among the priorities carried into this cycle are public safety, infrastructure, and community engagement. While a full inventory of police, fire, and EMS capacity or parks infrastructure fell outside the scope of the plan's conditions analysis, these topics emerged repeatedly through community engagement as concerns and assets residents want addressed. The categories below reflect that input as guiding principles, translating what the community identified directly into action items

Public Safety

A priority the community raised consistently through engagement. It's carried forward as a lens for future CWP action items rather than reflected in current carryover projects.

Community Engagement

Reflects the City's effort to translate what residents said they value into concrete action items, from signage and wayfinding to the Arts & Entertainment District's physical character.

Infrastructure

Covers the on-the-ground capital and regulatory work needed to support growth: streets, sidewalks, parks, housing stock, and the design/zoning standards that shape how new development fits into the city.

Report of Accomplishments (2021-2026)

Despite the ROA identifying achievements from the previous CWP cycle, it is not a holistic view of everything Jonesboro leadership, staff, and community have accomplished since the last update. Below is a list of projects, accomplishments, and initiatives that have wrapped up or are underway that are moving Jonesboro in the direction of the community's vision and goals.

Items that are COMPLETED have been finished within the 5-year reporting period prior to this comprehensive plan update.

Items that are UNDERWAY have been initiated or had partial progress as of the end of the 5-year reporting. They have been carried over into the reporting period for this update.

Items that are POSTPONED are still priorities for the community and have been carried over into the new 5-year reporting period for this comprehensive plan update.

Items that are DROPPED have been dropped and are not in this comprehensive plan update.

Yes the increase of property taxes. These high taxes have forced long times resident out of. Their homes . Prompte to the homeowner about tree lim pick up and leave bag pick up. Promotion of large trash pick up or drop off. Offering more jobs in jonesboro

6/28/2026

① 1 Agree

The storm water system is in great need of maintenance, it's not uncommon for streets to be unpassable to to water accumulation from clogged storm drains. This also leads to the buildup of trash along our streets. Also, although I respect the sanitation workers immensely for the service they provide, it is not uncommon for trash cans to be left open to fill with water after being collected, or left out in the middle of the street after collection. It is also common place for the trucks to continuously lose their cargo as they go along, leaving piles of putrid trash at every spot they stopped and left to stain the streets and run down our aforementioned badly clogged storm drain system only to pool and get even more smelly.

Property taxes have more than doubled and city services seem to become of less quality and officials have less regard for the rampant wasting of our money. As a result, we are moving out of Jonesboro and Clayton County
