RE: Contract for Ms Noble

While the compensation of $120,000 p.a. is significantly higher than the county average wage, hiring her as a contractor permits BCHA to avoid paying her benefits. If this is the intent of hiring her as a contractor, that seems contrary to the values of BCHA and the community it serves. BCHA, as a significant public institution, sets an example for other employers. Is denying its workforce benefits the example it wants to set? What kind of a message does that send to the people it serves?
