Objective

Drawing an interest in architecture and the built environment from a young age, Casey enjoys seeing the evolution of architecture at all scales in both rural and urban contexts. Interested in Mid-Century Modern design and its influence on the local vernacular, he finds excitement in the juxtaposition of the old and new. Casey's attraction to designing for place employs the clean lines of Mountain Modern design and the use of reclaimed and sustainable materials. He desires teamwork and a collaborative environment to learn new skills. As Casey further develops his interests and knowledge base, he intends to use these objectives to strengthen his passion in the field of architecture and community context.
