Joe,

After reviewing this email thread, it appears you got cut off at some point. We apologize for that. Everything is being delivered to the job site on 10/28. It was supposed to be 10/25, but the crane wasn't available, so it got pushed to 10/28.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Good afternoon Brandon,

I am getting word that the delivery of the vessels for the Village of Kronenwetter project has been delayed again and will not be delivered to the site next week as scheduled. Can you please check into this and see what the delay is and if we have a new tentative delivery date from Kurita?

Thanks again for your help,

Joe,

We received an update on this project this morning the current ship date looks like it will be 10/7.

We will keep you posted as the vessel hits paint and final inspections – this is usually a week before they would be looking to ship so this can help align the crane delivery to offload all vessels.

This note has already been sent to Brian at Rohde Brothers as well.

I sent a note yesterday on this matter, can you confirm you received?

Thanks!

Good morning Joe,

Thanks again for stopping by the booth the discuss the matter of delivery of Kronenwetter with me.

See below email thread between Kurita/Tonka and Rhode. Additionally, from what I understand, Rhode has requested hold on delivery unit all units are complete. With that said a delivery window of mid to late October is the expectation.

Emily copied on here has been made aware of this delivery pain point and will continually keep you posted/reach out for updates as we get closer to that delivery date.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Thanks!

Brian/Emily –

Good morning!

I have a short update on the vessels here. We have the vertical pressure filters complete and ready to ship. The Fab shop has faced a number of issues with storms and is quite delayed on the horizontal filter, the update that was provided was mid-end of October now – I am working to bring this timeline in and working with them to get this sooner so hopefully I have a better date for you next week.

Given this update, did you still want the VPF's held until the horizontal is complete or would you like to take delivery of those sooner?

Attached are photos of the finished vertical vessels.

Thank you,

Nina Halverson

Hello Nina and Emily,

I would still take some photos of the vessels for billing purposes. And the main thing, we are now within one month of delivery, and I need to start setting up a crane and equipment to receive this equipment. I am going to need a hard delivery date very soon, mainly to reserve a crane. Let me know as soon as possible.

Emily,

We received this invoice from Kurita. It looks like this is for a portion of the materials. I will be putting this amount on our next pay app for the project that goes out the 20th of every month, but I will likely be needing some photos of materials for us to get this approved. And being that these materials are not in my possession or onsite I'm not sure they will approve payment until delivery. Lets at least start with some photos. If you can give me some advanced notice of any other large invoices coming we can ask for that payment sooner.
