MEMORANDUM

TO: Mayor Robert Simison and City Council

FROM: Steve Siddoway, Parks & Recreation Director

RE: Community Center Feasibility Update

Background

Next week, on May 18-19, our consultants from BerryDunn (aka GreenPlay) will be back in town for the next steps of the Parks & Recreation Master Plan process. While they are in town, we would like to give the City Council an update about progress on the draft concepts for the Community Center. This update will be based on the feedback received from the Mayor and City Council during our interviews approximately a month ago. There will be a concept for the site next to City Hall in downtown, one for the site adjacent to the Parks Shop and one generic site plan for a future location TBD. After we have direction on the concepts (mix of uses, room types, etc.) future work will begin on the cost estimates and the more detailed tasks of the feasibility study. This presentation is an interim check-in to make sure we are on the right track before proceeding any further.

Proposal

No formal action is needed at this time. We will be looking for general direction from the Council if you are comfortable with the draft concept plans moving forward to a future public meeting for additional feedback from the public.
