Introduction

This report covers a two-phase reconnaissance-level survey of North Main Street, Meridian Idaho. The objective of the survey is to identify eligible, or potentially eligible, properties for listing in the National Register of Historic Places (NRHP). This survey is part of Meridian's continued historic preservation efforts as outlined in Goal 2 Locate and identify historic and archeological resources significant to Meridian's past in the City of Meridian Preservation Plan, 2014.

Survey Area and Setting

The North Main Street Reconnaissance survey area in its entirety includes approximately 37 city blocks located south of Cherry Lane/Fairview, west of E. 4th Street Avenue, north of Broadway Avenue, and east of NW 1st Street.

The Phase 1 boundaries extend north to south from Carlton Avenue to Broadway Avenue and east to west from E. 2nd Street to NW 1st Street. The area along Broadway Avenue is changing as new construction is filling in the area once filled with railroad sidings.

The Phase 2 boundaries extend generally north to south from Fairview to Carlton Avenue and east to west from NE 3rd Street to NE 2nd and a Half Street. Phase 2 also includes blocks from Carlton Avenue south to Broadway, west of NE 4th Street to NW 1st Street, which were not covered by Phase 1.

Methodology

TAG conducted limited research including a review of Idaho Historic Sites Inventory (IHSI) forms, online newspapers, and previous surveys. The Ada County Assessor's Office was accessed to obtain parcel numbers and construction dates. TAG requested a Record Search from the SHPO office to identify previously recorded sites and surveys. The results of Record Search 22410, received on August 8, 2022, identified 119 previously recorded historic sites within or near the survey area.

Most of the previously recorded historic sites were documented by two surveys of downtown Meridian and surrounding streets. From July 1987 to May 1988 a reconnaissance-level survey of properties constructed before 1926 was undertaken by Lila Hill and a team of volunteers for the Meridian Historic Preservation Commission (MHPC). 1926 was selected because at that time the City of Meridian installed its first sewer system, providing a record of ownership through recorded assessments and sewer hookups. The MHPC project documented 151 structures with photographs, maps, and information recorded on a survey form. The sites were not evaluated for the National Register of Historic Places eligibility, but the forms include dates of construction, historic names, and location information.

In 2005, architectural historian Emily Peeso completed the Meridian Reconnaissance Survey Phase 1 for the MHPC, documenting a few sites within the project area of the N. Main Street Survey.

Fieldwork for both Phase 1 and Phase 2 used the following methodology:

- Previously recorded properties determined ineligible in the 2005 survey were not re-recorded.
- Previously recorded sites which were not evaluated were re-recorded with a determination of eligibility.
- Properties 45 years or older were recorded as well as new construction which replaced previously recorded properties.

Fieldwork

A Reconnaissance-level Survey (RLS) is designed as a “first look” at a broad group of historic resources and records basic information that is collected from the exterior of a building only, such as an address, height, siding, and building materials, architectural style, and potential eligibility for listing in the National Register either individually or as a contributing resource to a historic district.<sup>1</sup>

A contributing property to a historic district does not have to meet the threshold for individual significance, but it must contribute to the district’s area of significance. Properties contributing to a district’s significance for architecture must retain a higher degree of architectural integrity than in a district significant for association with an important individual or with historical events or patterns of history.

Fieldwork took place from August 15 -August 30, 2022 (Phase 1) and May 10 – June 26, 2023 (Phase 2). The reconnaissance-level survey included digital photography and an exterior visual inspection of the sites. Properties were evaluated consistent with the Idaho State Historic Preservation Office Idaho Historic Sites Inventory Requirements and Standards for Documentation. Photography meets the requirements of the NRHP and SHPO with at least two images of each property when possible. Buildings were recorded from the public right-of-way.

The reconnaissance-level survey included limited property research in the sources identified above. Field analysis led to the identification of potentially eligible and ineligible resources by National Register Bulletin 15: How to Apply the National Register Criteria for Evaluation.

Historic Significance

To be listed in the NRHP, individual properties and historic districts must demonstrate significance in at least one of the following criteria:

- A Association with events, activities, or broad patterns of history.
- B Association with the lives of persons significant in our past.
- C Embody distinctive characteristics of construction, or represent the work of a master, or possess high artistic values; or represent a significant or distinguishable entity whose components may lack individual distinction.
- D Have yielded or be likely to yield information important in prehistory or history.

Historic Integrity

The NRHP defines seven physical aspects of historic integrity, which is defined as “the authenticity of a property’s historic identity, evidenced by the survival of physical characteristics that existed during the property’s historic period.”<sup>2</sup> The seven aspects of integrity are:

Location
Design
Setting
Materials

Workmanship
Feeling
Association

Historic Context

Some of the following information is excerpted from the Meridian Reconnaissance Survey, 1987-1988, and the City of Meridian Historic Preservation Plan, 2014.

Located in the high desert of southwest Idaho, Meridian is situated on a broad, flat plain in the north-central part of the Boise Valley. The Rocky Mountain foothills rise to the northeast and the Owyhee Mountains are to the southwest. To the north of the city, the Boise River, a tributary of the Snake River flows through the valley.

Euroamerican settlers displaced Native Americans in southwestern Idaho beginning in the 1860s, spurred by mining. The discovery of gold in 1862 in the Boise Basin, northeast of the Boise Valley, brought an influx of prospective miners. Farming settlements quickly appeared on the river bottoms where abundant water was easily accessible from the Boise River. Farmers grew vegetables, grains, and fruits to supply to the miners. Initially, settlers who farmed land adjacent to the river simply dug ditches from the river or stream to lead water onto their lands. As additional farms were established, ditches were enlarged to accommodate them. When the land closest to the river was taken up, settlers began to move to the bench land above the river bed. Community efforts, private enterprise, and federal involvement resulted in the construction of larger ditches and canals, which opened up the bench lands to agricultural development.<sup>3</sup>

Meridian's history, like the history of many southwestern Idaho towns, is linked directly to irrigation and the development of productive farmland from arid lands. The first settlement in the area was at Five Mile Creek, the closest source of water, but settlers were soon also located along Ten Mile Creek. By 1895, there were enough people in the area to support a school. The Idaho Central Railway constructed a line from Nampa to Boise in 1887. The following year, the U.S. Postal Service established a mail drop on the railroad at a point midway between Nampa and Boise. The drop was named "Hunter," after John Hunter, who was superintendent of the Idaho Central Railroad. A trading center began to develop at the mail drop. In August of 1893, C.G. Zenger filed a plat for a new town, to be named "Meridian," after its location on the Boise Meridian. The name of the post office was changed to Meridian in April 1894.<sup>4</sup>

As the community grew, so did efforts to bring water to the farms. The Settlers Ditch Company was established on October 30, 1884. The original locators of the canal and water rights were Christian R. Purdum, Adolphus Purdum, and William H. Smith. They made their filing on October 17, 1884, claiming water to irrigate land west of Boise City. It was not until 1886 that the ditch began to take shape. Initially, the ditch was constructed by the farmers settling in the western part of Ada County. Unfortunately, the settlers were unable to complete the work themselves. In 1885, they signed a contract with Alexander McGee and James Stewart, organizers of the Phyllis Canal Company for the construction of the ditch. McGee and Stewart failed to complete the work and the farmers took the ditch back. They were able to persuade a few local businessmen to purchase stock in the canal company. In 1887, John Lemp took over the direction of the Settlers Ditch, which then became known as the Lemp Canal.<sup>5</sup>

Under Lemp's ownership, the main gate was completed in 1891 and a system of laterals was constructed to furnish water to the farmers. By 1896, so many settlers had taken up land under the Lemp Canal that even when running to its full capacity, it was no longer able to meet the water demand. In 1901, Lemp sold the project to the newly organized Settlers Canal Company Ltd. which continued its operation and changed the name of the main canal back to Settlers Canal.

The Nampa Meridian Irrigation District (NMID) was formed in 1904 following the passage of a law in 1899 by the Idaho Legislature providing for the organization of irrigation districts to manage water delivery systems. Under the law, each district was given the authority to construct, purchase or otherwise obtain the necessary water rights, irrigation works, canals, and ditches including those built or in the process of construction by private owners, and to provide landowners with sufficient water for irrigation. NMID is the source of most of the irrigation in the immediate area. The original townsite of Meridian is served by the Hunter lateral which extends from the Ridenbaugh Canal northwest through Meridian Cemetery and continues to the north where it meets the Settlers Canal. As more sophisticated irrigation systems were developed, settlers from Missouri, Iowa, and other midwestern farm states flocked to the open land around Meridian where they established new farms.<sup>6</sup>

Meridian was incorporated as a village in 1903 with a population of approximately 200. The village was served by a variety of businesses, with as many as two or three competing drug stores, general stores, hotels, lumber yards, saloons and telephone companies. Villagers had their choice of churches and fraternal organizations. Professional services were provided by one attorney, two physicians, and a realtor.<sup>7</sup>

As the population of southwestern states grew in the early 20th century, so did the demand for dairy products. The increased demand came at the same time as the introduction of concrete silos and other technological advances, which in turn brought more farmers to dairy production. Meridian's location near both the Oregon Short Line and the interurban electric railways (connecting communities from Boise to Caldwell) was a great benefit to the dairy industry. Farmers used both the railroad and the interurban lines to ship their milk to creameries and cheese factories.

Meridian was the site of a creamery as early as 1897 when the Meridian Creamery was incorporated, and a cheese factory was established in 1913, part of an agricultural boom that continued into the years of World War I. When the war ended, prices fell dramatically for grain, cattle, and sheep, but farmers persevered. Meridian historian Lila Hill notes that the Ada County Dairymen's Association (ACDA) creamery was the center of the area's economy from 1929-1970. Buildings related to the ACDA creamery formed the core of downtown Meridian.

According to Lila Hill, many of the homes built before 1926 were built as rentals for the workers in the fruit and dairy industries in Meridian when those industries were booming. Many of the early structures, some of which are still extant, were one-story square buildings with a pyramidal roof and central chimney.

World War II brought another boom to Meridian. Some returning veterans used the loan programs of the Serviceman's Readjustment Act of 1944 (popularly known as the GI Bill) to purchase existing farms where they raised cattle feed for their dairy herds and sold milk. By the mid-1950s, in addition to being a thriving agricultural center, Meridian was also home to several industries: The ACDA creamery, two lumber processing plants – Brock Lumber and Meridian Molding--and the Storey Hatchery. Agricultural and industrial growth also led to a housing boom. Five new subdivisions were added to the city between 1948 and 1950.

During the early 21st century, Meridian's character changed from an agricultural community to a sophisticated urban center. It had grown from a rural center to a thriving commercial, social, and residential urban community.

Findings

Two earlier surveys encompassed some buildings in Phase 2, the 1987-1988 Meridian Historic Survey of Properties built before 1925 and a 2005 Reconnaissance-level survey of neighborhoods surrounding downtown. Several buildings documented in these earlier surveys have been demolished, including the Meridian Exchange Bank, 109 NE 2nd Street, designed by Tourtellotte and Hummel and listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1984 as Site #45 in Tourtellotte & Hummel Architecture in Idaho.

256 properties were surveyed for this survey in two phases. 59 were previously recorded, but many of those were not evaluated for NRHP eligibility at the time of recording. 4 properties within the survey area have been listed on the NRHP. The survey identified two small potential historic districts and ten properties outside of those districts as potentially individually eligible to the NRHP. 227 properties are recommended not eligible due to age (less than 45 years old) or modifications that negatively impact historic integrity. Please see the appendices following this report for a selected list of properties within the potential historic districts and those recommended individually eligible to the NRHP as well as site forms for those properties.

LAND USE

The survey area is intersected by two north-south arterial roads, North Main Street and Meridian Road, and encompasses residential streets as well as commercial/professional office centers. Most of the properties recorded are classified as dwellings, with some representation of commercial, professional, educational, and religious properties.

ARCHITECTURAL STYLE

The characteristics of the house styles are taken from Virginia Savage McAlester's A Field Guide to American Houses (1984, 2013).

Styles include the Queen Anne style which was common in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. Queen Anne houses have irregular floor plans, large porches, and elaborate decoration on exterior surfaces. Queen Anne styles can be large houses featuring an abundance of decoration but modest homes or cottages also feature elements of the style. Cottages, like the one shown on the left, located on East Pine Avenue, are often one or one-and-a-half stories in height with a hip and gable roof, sawn wood ornamentation, and front porches with turned or rounded wood porch supports.

Tudor Revival style was popular from about 1890 until just before World War II. The few examples in the survey area date from the late 1930s. Characteristics of the style include a steeply pitched roof, usually side-gabled with a façade dominated by one or more prominent front-facing gables; tall narrow windows, usually in multiple groups, with multi-pane glazing; massive chimneys, sometimes crowned by decorative chimney pots; front door and/or entry porch with round or Tudor arch; decorative half-timbering. The example above, on N.

Main Street, is clad in stucco, which was a popular inexpensive cladding when applied over a wood frame. Brick veneer became popular in the late 1920s.

The Craftsman/Bungalow style was popular from 1900 until the 1930s. Craftsman/Bungalow houses are characterized by their low-pitched gable roofs with wide roof overhang and exposed rafter tips, decorative knee braces, and full or partial width front porches. This example is located on E. State Avenue.

Minimal Traditional and Ranch housing styles are also found in the survey area. The Minimal Traditional style house commonly built from 1935 until about 1950 were small one-story (usually) gable houses with few embellishments. Meant to be inexpensive to build and affordable, these homes are found in communities throughout the United States. The example at right is on NW 1st Street.

The Ranch style, popular in the 1950s and 1960s, was another effort to develop an affordable home design. Characteristics of the ranch style include one-story, low-to-the-ground, low-pitched roof without dormers, a moderate-to-wide roof overhang; front entry usually located off-center under the main roof of the house; an attached garage; a large picture window. The example at left is located on N. Main Street.

The modest hipped roof cube with central chimney is a common house form found in the survey area. These boxy, one-story houses are recognized by their distinctive roof, which can either be a true, four-equal-sided pyramid shape, or a hip-roof with a short ridge at the peak. It was a popular type of small house for working-class families at the turn of the 20th century.

Recommendations

East Idaho Avenue Potential Historic District

A block of buildings on East Idaho Avenue appears to be eligible for listing in the NRHP as a historic district. Approximate boundaries would be the west lot line of 140 East Idaho Avenue to the northwest corner of the intersection of East Idaho Avenue and NE 2nd Street. The oldest building in the group is the Bank of Meridian (now The Vault), built c 1908. When it was recorded in 1987, the building was covered in metal siding. Since then, the siding has been removed and the exterior has been restored to its original appearance. Most of the other buildings in this small group were built in 1913, filling in open space on East Idaho Avenue, and causing the local paper to speculate that this would be the new business center of Meridian.

North Main Street Historic District

A second potential historic district was identified on North Main Street on the west side of the street from its intersection with East Carlton Avenue to the centerline of the alley north of 1403 North Main Street. The majority of the buildings are residences that have been converted to commercial use while preserving their historic character, including landscaping. The nine resources below contribute to the historic integrity of the potential district. The individual site forms for the buildings in both potential historic districts are attached as appendices to this report.

A selection of contributing properties in the North Main Street Potential Historic District.

A possible third group of resources that merit more investigation are the many small, hipped roof cottages built in the early years of the 20th century. As noted earlier in the report, local historian Lila Hill suggested that the small houses were constructed for rental to the many workers in the dairy and fruit industries. More background research and verification are required to make a final decision regarding the potential eligibility of those resources.

We recommend that the MHPC consult with SHPO regarding the selection of an individual property or historic district for possible nomination to the NRHP.

This project recorded a few properties on NW 1st Street. No eligible resources were identified, but we believe a future survey might include more of this west side of the community. This area encompasses a number of houses built after World War II. A survey devoted to this later era in Meridian's history may identify more potentially eligible properties than the current project found.

This project covered a very large area and required extensive data entry. We suggest that future properties concentrate on smaller areas with a more limited number of properties to record, perhaps setting a maximum survey size of 50 to 70 properties in a single project. This would allow more time for research as well as sufficient time for data entry.

The rapid population growth of the late-20th and early-21st centuries has radically changed Meridian's landscape. These surveys will help future historic preservation efforts as well as provide vital documentation of the rapidly changing built environment in Meridian, the fastest growing community in Idaho.

Please note:

Idaho Historic Site Numbers (IHSI) have been assigned to previously recorded properties by the Idaho State Historic Preservation Office (IHSI) and identify the property in the IHSI database. The two part number uses a code to identify the county followed by a 4 to 6 digit identifier. Those numbers appear as 01-000000.

The Temporary Field Number (TFN) is the number TAG assigns to a property when we are taking photos and recording details in the field. The TFN is also a two part number. For this project, those numbers are 2215-000

Once SHPO reviews this information, IHSI numbers will be assigned to the newly recorded properties in this document.
