Dear Traffic Box Art Committee:

I would love to contribute my art through the traffic box program, to help lift the hearts of people of the area as mine has been lifted so often by the beautiful traffic boxes around Meridian.

I studied music education in college, and then became a stay at home mom when my son was born. I soon started a business making stuffed toys. I branched out to art dolls, and took some community education art classes to hone my skills. I selected a watercolor painting class, and found a new passion. I started a second business selling my art originals, prints and cards, which has been growing every year since.

I've been a member of the Treasure Valley Artist's Alliance for a decade and a member of the Idaho Watercolor Society for two years, through which I've shown my work numerous times. I have run my small business, with its doll making and its watercolor art branches, for 12 years without ever having a late order. I am a reliable and conscientious worker and will be able to fill the needs of this committee for this project.

Through my watercolor paintings, I express the joy I find in color and the natural world. I explore a small scene in time and sit with it, ferreting out the little pockets of beauty and color to emphasize in each piece, and create a bold and colorful end product. I would love to offer that to passersby of a busy intersection, and perhaps inspire a bit of kindness and joy in each passing motorist and pedestrian.

The pieces that I submit today include:

- Road Trip in the Mountains, watercolor on paper. This piece expresses the gorgeous views of the beautiful state of Idaho, incorporating mountains and pine trees, beautiful billowing clouds, and the curve of the highway. The journey is the destination.
- Three Pears in a Blue Bowl, watercolor on paper. Captured at the moment of perfect ripeness, these three yellow pears contrasted beautifully with the cobalt blue of the bowl. You can almost taste the pears!
- At the Keys, watercolor on paper. After a long day I love to sit at the piano and play my favorite songs. It calms me like nothing else, and makes me appreciate the joy that music (whether creating or listening) can bring to us all.

I'm eager to apply my skills to the city's public art collection. Thank you for this opportunity to add to the ever increasing beauty of Meridian!

Sincerely,
Rachel Linquist, artist
