

Public Works Assistant

Daniel Potter

Since our last staff report I have been busy with plowing after the snow storms. We have been going into work around 1230am and getting done between 9am and 11 am. I have dug out the hydrants a couple times and plan to donut again this week since we have a slow down in snow. In between plowing snow I have also addressed several issues with people losing water. All issues so far have been past the meters and typically under a home. With the current lull in snow I will be conducting maintenance of all the snow chains, checking all fluids in the machines and ensuring we are ready for the next storm. Since the last update we had a flat tire on the loader. We had the bead ring replaced and it seems to be working for now. I have discovered a leak at the school and will be working with them to get it repaired. The school meter is not able to be shut off and needs to have a new splitter installed.
