Dear Mayor and City Council,

I am writing today to express my interest in serving on the planning commission. Having reviewed ordinance outlining the duties of the commission and having reviewed planning commission packets in the past, I can say one thing for certain, there is a great deal of dedication and attention to detail required of commission members. I think that makes me an ideal candidate for consideration. The work the commission does may seem monotonous at times, but it plays an important part in our daily life and for future generations of Nomeites. I am known for my commitment to integrity and excellence while also keeping solutions simple and straightforward. A self-described "good bureaucrat", I believe the government can be a force for good and positive change in a community. I put a strong emphasis on people, process, and policy in my daily life.

I have been an active Rotarian for 16 years serving in various leadership roles at the club level. I believe in the motto of Rotary which is "service above self". I enjoy following local and state politics. I live full time in Nome with my wife Gracy, and our two son's Matthew and Aiden. During summer you'll find me at work or spending time out at the family cabin located about 75 miles Northeast of Nome riding four-wheelers, boating the Niukluk river and lounging about soaking up the sun while working on a NY Times crossword puzzle.

Thank you for your consideration,
