Notes:

You might notice the total unique guests is lower. The second week of January we made a decision to allow guests to save their bed if they choose. This was to address the panic to show up and get in line earlier than 4:30 p.m. but it also is allowing us the opportunity to do more intensive case management with guests.

Since the change, we have seen 11 men and 4 women go back to work. The knowledge of a bed to sleep in each night gave them the security to take the next step. We have developed housing plans with many guests which resulted in rehousing six men and one woman. We helped two women get into a treatment for drug use. We connected more than four with mental health resources through our partners at COCMH. We helped two men get home to their family who were waiting to help them find work and housing. Though it may help fewer people, the quality of the service is increasing and we are seeing a better result.
