The Council then asked questions and discussed various budget items.

Councilmember Roundy acknowledged that the City is in a good place but expressed concerns about the low amount being added to reserves. He suggested that the City continue to prepare for a future need for more reserve funds.

Councilmember Tolley emphasized the importance of clearing all debt obligations and suggested that the City should prioritize paying off its debts as soon as possible.

C. Carnegie Center Facility Concept Options

Mr. Carr announced that the City Council will temporarily relocate its meetings to facilities with better ADA access while staff obtain cost estimates for upgrading the Carnegie facility. He outlined necessary and potential improvements for the building and requested Council's guidance on objectives before proceeding with the cost analysis. The improvements fall into three categories: Necessary for Facility Viability, Necessary for ADA Compliance and Potentially Desirable Improvements.

The Council asked questions and discussed various concerns and possible updates to Carnegie Center.

Councilmember Roundy requested that staff investigate the implementation of energy-efficient lighting solutions for the building.

Councilmember Tolley expressed that updating the ramp seemed the most practical option for the City and recommended obtaining price estimates before making a decision. Additionally, he proposed seeking community donations for an elevator installation if the Council chose that route, suggesting it could be dedicated in memory of people like his mother.

Mayor Dobbs emphasized the importance of addressing the roof, exterior, and windows first to prevent outside elements from entering before working on the interior.

Councilmember Romano emphasized that Carnegie is the town's most important building and suggested that the City hire an architect or request bids to ensure the project is completed properly.

Councilmember McDermott shared he had been doing research on renovating the building and proposed additional uses for it, such as a library, reading room, or chamber of commerce office. He concurred that hiring a professional would be the best approach.

Councilmember Roundy emphasized the need to address ADA issues first and suggested reducing the kitchen size and reorganizing the room layout.

Orland resident Carolyn Denton mentioned that Corning's old library added an elevator and suggested the Council visit to see the addition.

Orland resident and Economic Development Commissioner Brandon Smith supported the idea of hiring a professional to assist with the plans and upgrades.

Orland resident Earl Megginson stated that a professional's plan would help the Council make better decisions regarding upgrades and updates.

The Council agreed to have staff issue an RFP for professional services for Carnegie's upgrades and decided to remove the option of lowering the floor, with Mr. Carr concurring to exclude that from his options.

D. Update on Measure J

City Attorney Greg Einhorn provided the Council with background on Measure J, which proposes increasing the tax rate from $\frac{1}{2}$ to 1 cent if passed in November. He also discussed a potential initiative measure, the Taxpayer Protection and Government Accountability Act, which could impact Measure J as currently written if it passes. Mr. Einhorn noted that while local sales taxes do not require a sunset clause, he recommended adding one to Measure J to ensure its validity if the initiative passes. Councilmembers asked questions about the sunset clause and discussed additional information that needs to be included in the measure.

Mr. Einhorn informed the council that he will present the Ordinance for Measure J with updated language to be adopted and resubmitted. He also mentioned that he will monitor the State Supreme Court case and keep the Council informed about the initiative.
