Subject: Prop 1

Hi, Bruce Cady 204 Frederick Dr here.

I signed up for the state low income assistance on May 30 2025 incase prop 1 passed. We'll in July I got a letter from the doh saying they were sorry for the delay and it's there fault but they had my application. On October 16 I sent an email to the doh. Inquiring about my application status. On October 22 I got a reply from Jennifer Markle and it said pretty much the same thing they had my application and it was waiting to be reviewed. As January 1 is approaching I still have not been told yes or no. So the people who pushed prop 1 on the voters told half truths and lies to the public and the voters might not have passed it if the truth be known. The math they used said we cost approximately 480,000 in taxes. That would mean that 400 card holder's would have to spend 8,000,000 dollars ,that 20,000 each a year. Being I make less than 15,000 a year on social security that's not possible. And it's a real slap in the face when the 2,500 dollar cap on sales benefits the wealthy only because low income people can't afford to spend that much at a time. One 350,000 dollar skif motor trailer sale would be about 21,000 dollars in taxes. So who really costs the city more money in revenue. The only fair thing to do is make it so no one pays tax on food and everyone pays the full amount of tax on the full amount of the purchase. And reinstating the state income tax and the annual school assessment of fifty dollars from your first pay every year. And that would make the non resident work force pay taxes also.

Thank you for considering my feelings BC.
