Council Member Zander offered the invocation.

C. Mayor and Council Coordination

The mayor and council discussed the conference beginning tomorrow.

Council Member Brad Marlor discussed the roads and how the winter has left them in bad shape. After discussion with staff regarding availability of hot mix materials to properly address potholes, he asked if that information could be shared with the residents so they know city staff is aware of the pothole issues, and that they will be doing those more permanent hot mix repairs as soon as those materials are available.

Council Member Patrick Harris asked about flooding in the city, and if there were any current concerns.

City Manager Gary Whatcott responded that the majority of the city is not in danger. The few areas that were identified, mostly along Midas Creek, have already had doors tagged with information on how and where to get sandbags. He also noted that with the recent development in Herriman along Midas Creek, most of the flooding potential has been eliminated. In addition, due to the county flood control requirements, there were restrictive plates installed which will significantly lessen issues with the retention basins and the amount of flow.

Council Member Marlor asked specifically about the Jordan River and the areas north of 10600 South.

Manager Whatcott responded that the Jordan River will be different this year, as it has been four feet low; there would have to be four feet added to the lake to even reach a level of concern.

She does mostly photography now, and loves taking pictures of wildlife, sunsets, anything that gives her a reason to get out.
