

Neal McCoy is a lifelong Tupelo resident with deep roots in the community. A graduate of Tupelo High School's Class of 1992, he earned his degree from the University of Mississippi in 1998. Neal dedicated 23 years to serving the City of Tupelo, including 12 years as Director of the Tupelo Convention & Visitors Bureau, where he helped promote the city, support local businesses, and strengthen Tupelo's reputation as a premier destination for tourism, sports, and economic development.

After retiring from the City of Tupelo in 2024, Neal began a new chapter in real estate as a member of the Premier Home Team at Jason Warren & Associates.

Neal is married to his wife, Hannah, and he has three children: Mac, South, and Carter Cate.
