Hello Megan! In regards to the TDORA compliance information bullet points you wanted me to answer/respond to.

We should have the boundaries all explained on the map we sent. We will use barricades as well as fencing or have roped off. There will be signage as well as we used in previous years at Blocktoberfest. Monitored by Auxiliary police and volunteers helping as well including checking IDs at entrance and monitoring exits as well.

We will have signage of the rules for the TDORA and also share the guidelines on social media as well, similar to The Big Pop Up. Volunteers will also be shared and reminded of the rules and guidelines as well.

Both The Drafty Cellar and Local Waters will have our own Blocktoberfest Identifier stickers that will be placed on all alcoholic beverages and will be in 16oz plastic cups.

Wristbands will be used as we always have before after checking IDs.

The event is pretty self explanatory as this will be our 5th year. Same procedures as before with acknowledgement of the TDORA in place this time. Event will have live music throughout the day. Food trucks will set up before start and run until the end of the event. A stage with sound will be set up earlier in the day and taken down at the end of the event and that takes a bit of time and a lot of work to tear down, hence why we asked for a little more time this year. It also doesn't cause the cleanup crew to rush as much. If you have any other questions, please don't hesitate to ask.

Are there any more city council meetings you would like us to attend or is this good to go?

Thanks and have a great day Megan!
