

The Library & Your Family

Watertown Public Library helps families find library materials that meet their needs & interests

- Library materials are selected by trained professionals who follow the library's collection development policy and other professional resources to ensure the library has varied materials that serve the whole community.
- The layout of the library building separates library material based on age of the intended audience (children, teens, adults).

Watertown Public Library emphasizes that children's choice of library material rests with their parent or legal guardian.

The Library & Your Family

Watertown Public Library helps families find library materials that meet their needs & interests

- Library materials are selected by trained professionals who follow the library's collection development policy and other professional resources to ensure the library has varied materials that serve the whole community.
- The layout of the library building separates library material based on age of the intended audience (children, teens, adults).

Watertown Public Library emphasizes that children's choice of library material rests with their parent or legal guardian.

The Library & Your Family

Watertown Public Library helps families find library materials that meet their needs & interests

- Library materials are selected by trained professionals who follow the library's collection development policy and other professional resources to ensure the library has varied materials that serve the whole community.
- The layout of the library building separates library material based on age of the intended audience (children, teens, adults).

Watertown Public Library emphasizes that children's choice of library material rests with their parent or legal guardian.

Wisconsin statute grants parents and guardians access to their children's public library records when that child is under the age of 16.

- A parent or guardian is required to be present when a child gets a library card, which prevents a child from obtaining a library card without their permission.
- Parents and guardians can call, email, visit the library or use the app to get their child's account information.

Watertown Public Library supports the involvement of parents and guardians in their children's use of public library materials.

- Online resources are available to everyone with a library card, regardless of age, that are curated by professionals from outside agencies. Watertown Public Library does not have control over what content is available through Libby and Hoopla.

Wisconsin statute grants parents and guardians access to their children's public library records when that child is under the age of 16.

- A parent or guardian is required to be present when a child gets a library card, which prevents a child from obtaining a library card without their permission.
- Parents and guardians can call, email, visit the library or use the app to get their child's account information.

Watertown Public Library supports the involvement of parents and guardians in their children's use of public library materials.

- Online resources are available to everyone with a library card, regardless of age, that are curated by professionals from outside agencies. Watertown Public Library does not have control over what content is available through Libby and Hoopla.

Wisconsin statute grants parents and guardians access to their children's public library records when that child is under the age of 16.

- A parent or guardian is required to be present when a child gets a library card, which prevents a child from obtaining a library card without their permission.
- Parents and guardians can call, email, visit the library or use the app to get their child's account information.

Watertown Public Library supports the involvement of parents and guardians in their children's use of public library materials.

- Online resources are available to everyone with a library card, regardless of age, that are curated by professionals from outside agencies. Watertown Public Library does not have control over what content is available through Libby and Hoopla.