BACKGROUND

(Enter the who, what, when, where, why)

Alderson Smith had requested this item be added to the agenda after receiving concerns about the painting of the crosswalks.

Staff paint the white lines of the crosswalks every summer before the University is in session. There are seven crosswalk areas that were initially textured as brick and painted red when Starin Road was reconstructed in 2001. Street Department staff's recollection is that the paint wore off in the travel areas within a year and the decision was made to not waste paint and time every year to repaint these larger areas. Each crossing area has a pedestrian crossing sign associated with the crossing.
