Mayor's December 15, 2025 Opening Council Statement – Sewer and Stormwater Public Hearing

Good evening. This is our final City Council meeting of 2025, and before we turn to tonight's agenda, I want to pause for a moment.

This evening marks the beginning of Hanukkah, and I want to wish a happy Hanukkah to everyone celebrating. As we move through the season, I also want to wish our community a very Merry Christmas, a happy holiday season, and a healthy and hopeful New Year.

As the year comes to a close, I want to thank my colleagues on the Council and the many Wilsonville residents who showed up this year—who volunteered, attended community events, participated in public processes, and shared their voices with us. That spirit of participation is part of what makes Wilsonville strong.

This season is also a time when many households are taking a hard look at their budgets, thinking about the year ahead, and feeling the weight of rising costs. That context matters, and it's why I want to begin tonight by speaking about the proposed sewer and stormwater rate increases.

{ Over the past several weeks, I've heard from many residents about these proposed rate increases. I want you to know that I am listening, and that I understand why people are concerned.

I want to be clear from the outset: utility rates will have to increase. There is no path forward that avoids that reality if we are going to maintain safe, reliable sewer and stormwater systems. The real questions are how we do this, how quickly, and with what protections for households.

{ Like many of you, my family feels the strain of rising costs. We see it every month—higher electric bills, higher natural gas bills, higher grocery prices, higher insurance, and higher medical and prescription bills. These pressures are real, and they are affecting households across Wilsonville.

I also want to be transparent about how we got here. Much of the planning work that informs this discussion—including the long-range wastewater and stormwater plans and the decision to retain a rate consultant—was initiated before four members of this Council, including me, were sworn into office. Those plans help guide us, but in my view they do not predetermine the decisions this Council must make today.

And today's conditions matter.

I don't talk about cost burden lightly. I remember, as a young boy, watching my mother struggle at times to pay the rent and utilities. That experience stays with you, and it informs how I approach decisions like this.

In Wilsonville, 38% of households are already cost-burdened, meaning they spend more than 30% of their income just to cover housing and basic utilities. That includes renters and homeowners alike.

For renters, the pressure is even greater. More than half of renter households are cost-burdened, and 27% are severely cost-burdened, meaning they spend 50% or more of their income on housing and utilities.

For homeowners, cost burden can mean rising property taxes, insurance, HOA dues, and maintenance—on top of utilities. For renters, it often means rent and utilities taking up most of a paycheck, with little control over costs that are passed through. The pressures look different, but the stress is real for both.

This is real for people. It's a senior on a fixed income deciding whether to turn up the heat. It's a working family trying to hold onto a home. And for many renters, it's about whether they can afford to stay in the community at all—whether they can keep their children in the same school district, with the stability and opportunity that gives them a real chance at a promising future. That was something my mother fought hard to do for my brother and me, and it's not something you forget.

These pressures are being compounded by broader economic conditions. Oregon's unemployment rate remains elevated. Electric and natural gas rates are increasing. When sewer and stormwater increases are layered on top of all of that, more households will be pushed into cost burden, and those already struggling will feel it even more acutely.

I want to be clear that what I'm about to say reflects my judgment as Mayor, and that I am one vote on this Council. Other Councilors and our professional staff may reasonably see this differently, and I am open to hearing their thoughts and ideas.

From my perspective, we have reached a point where it is appropriate to at least examine utility affordability alongside infrastructure planning. Other cities have begun exploring this question. I believe it is reasonable to ask whether an affordability analysis is feasible, what it could tell us, and how it might inform our decisions—without assuming the outcome in advance.

At the same time, we have a responsibility to prepare our infrastructure for the future. Delaying necessary projects also carries real costs, especially as construction and financing expenses continue to rise. The challenge before us is to balance long-term infrastructure needs with the day-to-day quality of life of the people who live here now.

For that reason, before I am in a position to vote on any new sewer and stormwater rates, I will be asking staff to consider three things:

First, evaluate the feasibility of conducting an affordability analysis to better understand how rate decisions affect households and small businesses, and whether there are practical mitigation strategies available. Over the long term, we also need to be realistic about the capacity of local nonprofits to absorb increased demand, and whether additional tools may be needed beyond what organizations like Wilsonville Community Sharing and Heart of the City can reasonably provide.

Second, to review project timing and sequencing, so we understand where we have flexibility and where we do not.

Third, to examine whether there are other ways to pay for these projects that may be less burdensome to our residents.

For my one vote on Council, I will not be supporting a final decision on rates this evening unless this information is readily available from staff.

While rates will increase, I want residents to know this Council is committed to listening, doing the necessary work, and making the most responsible decisions we can in a difficult economic environment.

Later tonight, we will open the public hearing, and I encourage everyone who wishes to speak to do so. Your testimony matters, and it will help inform how we move forward.

Thank you for your patience, your engagement, and your care for this community.

The City of Wilsonville has enjoyed a sister-city relationship with Kitakata, Japan since October 1988. One of the ways the cities celebrate the ongoing relationship is through a student exchange. Local middle- and high-school students from each city travel for an exchange program to stay with host families and participate in local activities. These exchanges have nurtured and increased understanding of different cultures while creating wonderful memories and new friendships.

This year's student exchange group was in Wilsonville last week. I was honored to participate in events to welcome them to our community, including:

- A reception,
- A visit to City Hall to meet with City leadership,
- A meeting with the Japanese Consulate in Portland, and
- A farewell dinner in the students' honor.

Holidays, Including Las Posadas Festival (Dec. multiple dates)

It is the time of year where multiple cultures and faiths celebrate important holidays. The City of Wilsonville, with the assistance of our Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI) Committee, maintains a "cultural calendar" that highlights holidays, celebrations, and other days of importance that are celebrated by historically marginalized communities.

Hanukkah begins December 14 at sundown and ends the night of December 22. Hanukkah is a Jewish holiday, the "Festival of Lights," observed for eight nights and symbolizing the perseverance of Jewish faith. Candles are placed in a "menorah," with one candle lit for each of the eight nights of Hanukkah, representing a miracle when a small amount of oil burned at an ancient temple for eight days. Jewish families will also cook traditional foods such as latkes, play games like dreidel, and recite special prayers and blessings.

Kwanzaa is a secular celebration of African and African-American culture from December 26 through January 1, culminating in a communal feast. Based on traditional harvest festivals from across Africa, it was first celebrated in 1966 to give African-Americans a time to celebrate their history and culture.

Las Posadas runs from December 16 through December 24. Celebrated in Mexico and other parts of the Spanish-speaking world, including the United States, Las Posadas commemorates Mary and Joseph's journey to Bethlehem in search of shelter. Many Latino communities will have a parade or procession through town led by a child dressed as an angel. The City of Wilsonville is proud to host a Las Posadas Celebration on Thursday, December 18 from 4:00-6:00pm at the Wilsonville Community Center. This will be the third annual Las Posadas Celebration in Wilsonville, and I want to thank the members of the DEI Committee and our generous title sponsor, Oregon State Credit Union, for presenting this event.
